

liverpool biennial

ARTISTIC DIRECTOR/CHIEF EXECUTIVE

SALARY circa £60,000

Following the decision of current Chief Executive and Artistic Director, Lewis Biggs, to move on after more than 10 successful years at Liverpool Biennial, the Board of Trustees is looking to appoint an experienced, confident and inspirational artistic leader to build on his legacy and enthuse and challenge artists and audiences locally, nationally and internationally.

The 6th edition of Liverpool Biennial attracted 628,000 visitors and the company's ongoing public realm commissions generate audiences of tens of thousands each year. Liverpool Biennial is a vital element of Britain's arts offer, driven by partnerships with key organisations and institutions in the city and across the world.

The Board is looking for a candidate with a successful track record of curating shows and working with artists at the highest level, with well established connections both nationally and internationally. In addition they are looking for someone who has the vision, energy and skills to offer new thinking and ideas about the future direction and organisation of the Biennial in the longer term.

If you would like further details of this post, please reply to our HR consultant on janehowardHR@gmail.com
Or go to the Biennial website www.biennial.com

Application should be made by letter and CV submission.
Final interviews for this post will be held on 18th July in Liverpool.

Liverpool Biennial is supported by

